

Job Description

Carnevale Associates, LLC is seeking a Research Associate to join our growing team of professionals. This position will work full-time on a federal project in our criminal justice portfolio. The position is currently 100% telework, but travel to Washington, DC several times a week will be required in the future. Applicants selected will be subject to a security investigation and may need to meet eligibility requirements for access to classified information. The successful candidate will provide an objective view of justice-related performance management systems and processes and help lead efforts to create programs that are results focused. This person will:

- Serve as subject matter expert on performance management, data-driven decision-making, performance measures, program design, and evidence-based practices
- Assist with performance measures development or revisions (e.g., attend meetings, review drafts, develop logic models, etc.)
- Design and implement assigned project deliverables from start to finish (with team input)
- Respond to ad hoc data analysis requests that may have quick turnaround times
- Develop professional quality written documents (i.e., reports, summaries, fact sheets, PowerPoint presentations, and emails) to communicate analysis results
- Assist in defining and reporting program results by consulting with stakeholders to identify key metrics; develop various deliverables based on those metrics (e.g., report, dashboards)
- Provide technical assistance to federal staff on performance measures, performance management, program design, and data collection and reporting (i.e., through logic modeling process)
- Clean and organize datasets for analysis; conduct simple analysis (e.g., measures of central tendency, summations, etc.)
- Review and provide feedback to team members on deliverables

Requirements

- U.S. citizen
- Bachelor's Degree, preferably in criminology, criminal justice, social science research, or other appropriate subject area, Master's Degree preferred
- 3 years of experience with analysis of quantitative and qualitative data and performance measurement (a significant portion must be in the justice area)
- Demonstrated subject matter expertise in performance management, performance measurement, program design, and criminal justice
- Ability to perform assigned tasks with minimal to no supervision
- Experience with data analysis and data presentation and knowledge of statistical software packages (SPSS, STATA, SAS, R) and data visualization software such as Tableau or Socrata
- Strong written, editing, and verbal communication skills including the ability to communicate technical data to non-technical audiences
- An analytic, detail-oriented approach and an ability to work with medium-sized data sets

- Ability to manage multiple tasks and tight deadlines simultaneously
- Proficiency using SharePoint and the Microsoft Office365 Environment (Word, Excel, PowerPoint, Outlook, and OneDrive)
